Skin contact wine is a type of white wine where the grape skins are left in contact with the juice during fermentation. This process can last from a few hours to several months, resulting in a range of colors from golden-straw yellow to deep amber or orange.

These wines can offer a broad spectrum of flavours and aromas, including apricot, peach, honey, ginger, orange peel, chamomile, jasmine, and baking spices.

Skin contact wines are known for their versatility and complexity. They can range from delicate and fruity to more oxidized, or robust with notable body and tannins.

As the Sardinian saying goes, "When the wind comes from the sea, you can hear voices of strangers, but they are voices that pass." This captures the spirit of the island, where the local culture has been shaped by a rich history of outside influences, including in wine-making. The Phoenicians were the first to bring wine to the island, and today, Sardegna is home to a variety of grape varieties and wine styles. From the crisp Vermentino of the north to the robust Cannonau of the south, each wine reflects the unique terroir and spirit of the island.

deep, with evidence of winemaking dating back to Mycenaean traders in 1500 BC. Legend has it that Dionysus himself brought wine and joy to the island, but even without the myth, it's clear that winemaking is an integral part of Sicilian culture. When the Greeks settled in Sicilia in the 8th century, they brought with them their love for "oinos" (wine), introducing different grape varieties to the island. Today, Sicilian wines are known for their bold flavours. unique grape varieties, and rich history that is sure to transport you back in time with every sip.
