LOMBARDIA

Lombardy's Franciacorta region is celebrated for its sparkling wine, produced using the traditional method used in Champagne. The region's wines are characterized by a rich and complex flavor profile, making them a must-try for any wine enthusiast.

VENETO

It is home to Prosecco, a sparkling wine made from Glera grapes, that it is typically light, fruity, and refreshing.

EMILIA ROMAGNA

Lambrusco di Sorbara "Radice Paltrineri" is a very unique one. Made with the ancestral method, and a low maceration on the skin that makes it a Rosè, it is fresh, mineral and perfect with seafood.

● LE MARCHE

Verdicchio, Italy's greatest native white grape variety is definitely one of our favourites. A lean, dry white wine with pear skin and preserved lemon flavours. A great wine for pairing with fish.

● LAZIO

Lazio has a relatively small wine production, but still remains one of the centers of ancient winemaking. Wines are usually relatively light alcohol with flavours of lemon and chalk-like notes due to the region's volcanic soils.

As partners of Bacçalà, our chef and sommelier share a love and passion for Italian cuisine and wines. Moreno, our chef, who hails from the Marche region, is inspired by the seafood and fresh, simple flavours of his homeland. Fabio, our sommelier, a native of Rome, grew up with wine as an integral part of daily life. Join us as we explore the wines of their home regions, Marche and Lazio, and experience the true essence of Italian wine.

● TRENTINO - ALTO ADIGE

Possibly the most beautiful wine region in the world, Alto Adige (aka Südtirol), is where North meets South; in terms of climate, culture, and wine. Eventhough it is one of Italy's smallest winegrowing regions, thanks to its geographical position, it is also one of the most multifaceted. What emerges here are not trendy wines, but rather authentic wines with their own original character. The higher altitudes result in moderate vine growth, a longer maturation period and lower yields. This in turn leads to high levels of concentration in the grapes.

VENETO

In Veneto, the indigenous red grapes Corvina, Molinara, and Rondinella have a long tradition and are used to produce Valpolicella, Ripasso, and Amarone wines. Amarone is a dense, rich wine made from air-dried, resonated grapes. In addition to reds, you can find amazing, refreshing, aromatic whites and of course, Prosecco, one of the most beloved aperitivos.

FRIULI

Friuli is a unique wine region located between Veneto, Slovenia, and southern Austria. Its two main sub-regions, Collio and Colli orientali del Friuli, produce light, aromatic wines. Friuli is also known for being the birthplace of skin contact technique, producing darker and more complex wines.

Tuscany is one of the most prestigious wine-growing regions in the world. Due its geological and climatic conditions, the wineries of the region produce high-quality Tuscan wines with a unique touch. The key grape in Tuscany is without doubt Sangiovese. Some Super Tuscans employ 'international varieties' such as Cabernet and Merlot while Chianti tends to include small amounts of Canaiolo or Colorino.

SARDEGNA

As the Sardinian saying goes, "When the wind comes from the sea, you can hear voices of strangers, but they are voices that pass." This captures the spirit of the island, where the local culture has been shaped by a rich history of outside influences, including in wine-making. The Phoenicians were the first to bring wine to the island, and today, Sardegna is home to a variety of grape varieties and wine styles. From the crisp Vermentino of the north to the robust Cannonau of the south, each wine reflects the unique terroir and spirit of the island.

SICILIA

The history of Sicilian wine runs deep, with evidence of winemaking dating back to Mycenaean traders in 1500 BC. Legend has it that Dionysus himself brought wine and joy to the island, but even without the myth, it's clear that winemaking is an integral part of Sicilian culture. When the Greeks settled in Sicilia in the 8th century, they brought with them their love for "oinos" (wine), introducing different grape varieties to the island. Today, Sicilian wines are known for their bold flavours, unique grape varieties, and rich history that is sure to transport you back in time with every sip.
